Pinay with swine flu dies

DOH warns of 'more fatal' strain

By Doris Z. Paredes
and Christian V. Esguerra

IT FINALLY HAPPENED.

A 49-year-old woman died of heart attack at her home in Metro Manila on Friday, but a throat swab indicated she was infected with the Influenza A(H1N1) virus, making her death the first in the Philippines related to swine flu.

Health Secretary Francisco Duque III, who announced the woman's death at yesterday's briefing, stressed that the death was not caused by the virus but could have been aggravated by it.

The woman's death and the rise in the number of cases in the country and elsewhere have prompted the Department of Health (DOH) to gear up for a possible violent strain of the virus.

Dr. Isabela Olorio, director of the Center for Disease Prevention and Control, said a second wave of the virus would take place if the virus mutated into a "more virulent and more fatal" strain.

Iran military threatens to crush demos; protest leaders defiant

Media go to cyberspace in face of clampdown

TEHRAN, IRAN—IRAN'S Revolutionary Guard is threatening to crush any further opposition protests over the disputed presidential election and some demonstrations to prepare for a "revolutionary confrontation" if they take to the streets again.

The country's most powerful military force ordered demonstrators to "end the sabotage and stirring activities" and said their resistance is a "conspiracy" against Iran. A statement posted on Monday on the Revolutionary Guard's website warned protesters to "be prepared for a revolution and revolution" any confrontation with the Guards, Quds and other security forces and disciplinary forces.

QSD, IRAN—PROTESTERS and security forces probe. They collide in a cloud of tear gas and a shower of rocks and bottles in most cases—when the buses are big and the stakes are high—journalists from around the world are there.

But in the possibly home-shaping struggle now unfolding in Iran, the international media has been blurred from its normal frontline role and is quickly making adjustments to counter an official ban on firsthand reporting. Instead of the media dispatches coming from the scene, the situation has been greatly skewed. Many major news outlets now rely on phone calls, e-mails and Web chats—and often methods—to contact Iranian protesters and officials for information that bolsters the reports from colleagues in Tehran, who must remain in their offices.

The media clampdown also has been a test on other fronts—challenging the ability of authorities to control information in the Internet age, requiring editors and journalists to quickly decide what to publish from the avalanche of rumors, tips and observations on social networks.

Schools suspend classes, ignore CHED

A SLEW OF SCHOOLS IN Metro Manila and Laguna have suspended classes as the Department of Health announced the country's first death linked to the swine flu virus.

Most of these schools have confirmed the cases. Others have not.

So as not to cause panic among the public, the Commission on Higher Education (CHED) urged school officials not to suspend classes for their entire school if they have a confirmed Influenza A(H1N1) case.

"We shouldn't panic. If we panic, then everyone else will panic," CHED Chair Emmanuel Angeles said.

No end in sight for swine flu cases yet, says DOH exec

By Lito S. Salazar

THE NUMBER OF SWINE FLU cases is not expected to go down soon, and the virus could theoretically infect millions in the country, a Department of Health (DOH) official said yesterday.

Dr. Lourdes Lee Jay, head of the DOH's Emerging and Re-emerging Infectious Disease Programs, said the attack rate of the Influenza A(H1N1) virus was 23 percent.

Twenty-five percent of the population could be affected by H1N1. Butting it on the attack rate, if you have 90 million people, 23 percent of 90 million will be expecting that H1N1 could hit them," Lee

Jay said at a hearing of the House committee on health. He later said reporters that the 23 percent attack rate was the one observed by the World Health Organization based on the spread of the virus worldwide, but he said the rate in the country was 20 percent.

Lee Jay said that the 25-percent rate was just a possibility and that with a big chunk of the population may not actually be infected.

It may also take years before the virus could attack such a big number of people, if at all, he added.

Lee Jay explained during the hearing that based on the trend of the spread of the virus, in which cases jumped to more than 400 since the first case was confirmed to the country would really jump. It would probably touch the 1,000 mark, he added.

"This is part of the pandemic curve. At such a time that we have developed a real immunity, that's when the cases would go down," he said.

The Philippine Medical Association (PMA) has convened a task force to work with the DOH to help address the spread of the virus.

Quen Tiuco of the PMA said the task force would develop programs and educate the population by building lectures about the virus and ways to combat its spread.

He said the PMA could endin mobilize to 42,000 members across the country.

Lee Jay said that in the next few days, the DOH would release an administrative order directing all secondary and tertiary private and government hospitals to admit cases for treatment.

But the DOH would first have to ensure that these hospitals have the necessary infrastructure, resources and other supplies needed to address the needs of the patients, he added.

Lee Jay also said that the DOH alone would not be able to provide all the necessary medicines for all the people infected by the virus due to budgetary constraints.

As of yesterday, the number of A(H1N1) cases stood at 443 after 17 more people, including one foreigner, were confirmed to have the virus.

The World Health Organization has declared a global pandemic. As of Friday it said more than 44,300 cases had been reported worldwide with 180 deaths, mostly in Mexico and the United States.

"We would like to emphasize that globally and locally, the majority of cases only experience mild symptoms and eventually make a rapid and full recovery within weeks without any signs of medical intervention," Dagup said.

Of the 443 confirmed cases, 40 percent or 174 have already fully recovered, the DOH said.

Dry cough, fever

The newest case from last week on June 17, comprising of a woman, according to a DOH investigation.

She did not report for work the past day and went into self-medication taking paracetamol as she experienced dry cough, fever and chills.

On the morning of June 19, she stopped breathing. She was rushed to a hospital and died shortly before a doctor arrived.

Preventing circulation

Jay said the government findings showed that the deaths were caused by "congestion from health facilities to more appropriate facilities and the use of heavy personal protective equipment, viral or both."

The woman was also found to have a fever, sore throat and mild cough. "There are available resources, we cannot conclude that the death is due to A(H1N1)," but it is a concern which have reported deaths, majority have presenting medical conditions, he said.

The woman had been treated at a local clinic, she could have gotten the virus. Dagup said the DOH would not have known that the patient had the virus had her brother not called him up on June 17th reporting that she was in hospital. He said the DOH would only say that the woman was based in Marikina City hospital and growing up was known to have been infected since they have flu-like symptoms. But the patient's mother, brother and sister have no flu-like symptoms. Misinformation could be spread, he said, adding that the patient did not return to the country.

Complicated case

"This is really a complicated case," Dagup said in response to the hearing.

"We do not know several days, she was not feeling well because she had several medical conditions and a family (sister) claimed that she did not regularly seek medical attention," he said.

In keeping with its policy on confirmed cases, the DOH did not identify the woman.

High-risk groups

Dagup said the DOH would be "more aggressive" in targeting patients more vulnerable to have the complications as they would go priority cases.

The high-risk groups are those with uncontrolled diabetes, cardiovascular and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, chronic liver and kidney disease, HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and other infections, organ transplant recipients, those who are immunocompromised, pregnant women and the very young (five years and below) and the elderly.

"We want to make it clear that high-risk groups, those who have the flu symptoms should immediately go to these doctors. They should not wait for their symptoms to worsen because they are prone to many infections other than the novel virus such as our seasonal flu virus," Dagup said.

See a doctor

The health secretary said a new protocol for parents to seek professional care for children with rapid breathing, wheezing and shortness of breath.

"In this time of crisis, physicians should be informed immediately about group meetings in a doctor's office," he added.

Dagup said the best defense against infection is to stay at home and avoid public places. He said he will not leave his immune system and to practice good hygiene like proper hand washing and wearing a face mask and wear which minimize to prevent spreading infectious diseases.

"Many people can fight off this virus without special medications or hospitalizations. You may not be infected, but you can be a carrier of the virus," he said.

The DOH has discouraged wearing masks in public since the virus is not airborne, and advised that masks should only be worn by those with flu-like symptoms to keep them from infecting others.

Masks are also advised for unwell and medical personnel.

In anticipation of a second wave, Dagup said health workers were preparing a mass vaccination program to include non-Sancti Spiritus residents in domestic hospitals' responsibility.

The said authorities wanted to ensure that basic essential services continue. Companies are encouraged to ensure up to date computer "business continuity plans."

"The most important component is risk communication in various ways," he said.

"Second will be health education to make sure that all our hospitals and health facilities are prepared to address the severity of this," Dagup said.

Graft charges filed vs ex-governor, 4 others

By Edwin C. Teodoro Jr.

THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER yesterday filed graft charges against a former governor and four others for buying allegedly overpriced medical and farm equipment worth P20 million from a supplier without any license from the Bureau of Food and Drugs some eight years ago.

In the information filed with the Sandiganbayan, the Commissioner also stated that the equipment, which was bought via checks, belong to the town of former Mayor Goodenard. Goodenard Goodenard expired in 2004, leave equipment valued with value of $200,000 unaccounted for.

The evidence submitted in relation to the case that [the respondents] conspired and conspired with each other in entering into an agreement to acquire and illegal device purchase of medical and farm equipment from [former Mayor] Goodenard. This granting the latter revenue control benefits, advantages and professions, despite a clear violation of existing Commission on Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act.

Included in the graft case were former provincial health officer Renato Malon, general services management officer (GSMO) head Elio Nolasco, GSMO officer Ed Annita, and two businessmen: Renato Chantel and Renato Chantel.

Goodenard was head of the Philippine Super Regulatory Authority. His province was now Galing Galing and Chantel and Renato Chantel were also in the province.

The case involved from a complaint filed to the People's Grievance Office (PGO) and alleging that the respondents, including, among others, graft cases, the and the respondents were the provincial government brought from Chantel's residence in May 2005, were overpriced.

The Commission stated that previously, some of the respondents of the respondents were Chantel's residence in May 2005, were overpriced.

However, graft investigation officer Alvin Caldeira noted that Chantel's residence in May 2005, were overpriced.

Caldeira also noted that while the provincial government brought equipment from the respondents for P12 million each, similar equipment cost only P120,000 from another company.

The investigation also concluded that some of the respondents were Chantel's residence in May 2005, were overpriced.

The Commission stated that previously, some of the respondents of the respondents were Chantel's residence in May 2005, were overpriced.

even that the respondents would be included in it despite the fact that there was no purchase order or documentation of the purchase of supplies.

Tsunami victims awarded lots after 20 years

By Cynthia D. Balana

MANILA, AFTER 20 YEARS, THE government has awarded lots to the 400 families affected by the tsunami that struck Pagudpud City in 1979, Vice President Noli de Castro said yesterday.

De Castro, chief of the Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council (HUDCO), led the awarding of the Certificate of Eligibility for Lot Award or CELEA or, leading to the beneficiaries of the Strategic Rehabilitation Project in Pagudpud City under President Arroyo's Executive Order No. 160.

The proclamation provides a parcel of land for housing to tsunami victims.

De Castro was the guest of honor at a pagudpud City town hall meeting, which was attended by around 2,000 people at the Pagudpud City government.

"Congratulations to those who received the CELEA. This may be considered as a Transfer Certificate of Title (TCT). If you have any contribution as beneficiaries of the program," De Castro said in his speech.

The National Housing Authority (NHA) is the housing agency under the HUDCO which implements housing programs for tsunami-affected families, according to the Strategic Rehabilitation Project through its ongoing upgrading program. The project, completed on June 10, 2009, will benefit nearly 400 families.

During the awarding of the CELEA, the beneficiaries were given a certificate of eligibility for lot award (CELEA) or, leading to the beneficiaries of the Strategic Rehabilitation Project in Pagudpud City under President four Philippine Commission through Executive Order No. 160 dated March 3, 1979.

In 1979, however, the coastal townships of Pagudpud City were hit by a powerful tsunami, destroying everything in its path and killing thousands of people. Lot 5002 was then considered into a temporary residence, and the beneficiaries were given a certificate of eligibility for lot award (CELEA) or, leading to the beneficiaries of the Strategic Rehabilitation Project in Pagudpud City under President

Influenza A(H1N1)

Sitwasyon ng Influenza A(H1N1) sa Pilipinas

Hunyo 22, 2009

Sa kasalukuyan, mayroon ng 445 na kumpirmadong kaso ng Influenza A(H1N1) ang naitala ng DOH. 84 % ay gumaling na at ang iba naman ay nagpapagaling pa.

Noong Hunyo 22, 2009, iniulat ni Health Secretary Francisco T. Duque III na may namatay dahil sa malalang sakit sa puso at pulmonya. Dahil nagkaroon ng lagnat bago siya namatay, hiniling ng kanyang pamilya na suriin siya sa Influenza A(H1N1). Positibo ang naging resulta ng ginawang pagsusuri sa kanya.

Sa pagkakataong ito, ipinahahatid ng DOH na ang A(H1N1) ay isang mild form ng influenza illness kung saan gumagaling ang pasyente kung malakas ang resistensya. Karamihan ng kaso ay maaring gamutin sa bahay.

Ngunit tulad ng ibang impeksyon at seasonal flu strains, may mga pasyente na kailangan ng espesyal atensyon ng doktor. Agad kayong komunsulta sa doktor kapag may mga sumusunod na kondisyon :

1. mabilis na paglala ng influenza-like illness o anumang uri ng trangkaso
2. mga pasyenteng nangangailangan ng matinding pangangalaga tulad ng sa ICU o Intensive Care Unit
3. malalang uri ng pulmonya
4. malalang malnutrisyon (severe malnutrition)
5. may COPD (Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease) o malalang sakit sa бага
6. kumplikadong sakit sa puso na nangangailangan ng pagkalinga sa ospital
7. malalalang sakit sa bato na nangangailangan ng pagkalinga sa ospital
8. kumplikadong pagbubuntis
9. naggagamot laban sa kanser, organ transplant recipient at matagalang gumagamit ng steroids
10. mayroong HIV/AIDS
11. may diabetes na di mapababa ang blood sugar

"We want to make it clear that high-risk groups, once they have the flu symptoms, should immediately go to their doctor. They should not wait for their symptoms to worsen because they are prone to many infections other than the novel virus such as our seasonal flu strains."

The Board of Trustees of Samahang Basketbol ng Pilipinas, Inc. (SBP) wish to express their gratitude to all of you who have given their support and contributed to the success of the numerous programs which the SBP has put in place to develop Philippine basketball. In the last 27 years since its inception, SBP's influence, reach and leadership in Philippine basketball have been significant, particularly when viewed from the corner of the last 14 decades of existence of its predecessor association, the Basketball Association of the Philippines (BAP).

Referees Program

1. Implemented the comprehensive National Referees Development Program (NRDP) which has already benefited more than four hundred (400) referees in its first year.
2. Regularly sends Filipino referees to international basketball clinics so that there are now eleven (11) Filipino NBA licensed international referees compared with only two (2) when the SBP took over from the BAP one of whom still officiated in the forthcoming world championships in Perth in New Zealand.
3. Organized and fully subsidized the series of elite referees' clinics conducted by Mr. Alan Richardson, FIBA International Instructor and Tournament Supervisor for Referees.
4. Created an elite Referees Pool whose members are now being used by SBP member leagues.

Coaches Program

The SBP has implemented the National Coaches Accreditation and Licensing Program (NCLP) which already completed its first task of gathering and identifying over eight hundred (800) coaches nationwide. Numerous coaching clinics are now being held to standardize our coaching techniques in line with our National Team Program.

Youth and Grassroots Programs

1. Stages national Championships for different age groups and gender categories, including the Philippine Champions League where over two hundred (200) universities and colleges are represented and the forthcoming National Junior Championships for boys and girls.
2. Founded the National Basketball Training Center (NBTC), the elite basketball school for 15 and under boys and girls.
3. Created the SBP 15s, inspired by FIBA's 15s basketball program, to form competitive teams for the Asian Indoor Games, Asian Beach Games, Asian Pacific Games and the Youth Olympics.

National Teams

The SBP maintains a vibrant and aggressive national team program for all age and gender categories. All National Teams are well-funded through the support of SBP sponsors and donors.

1. The SBP has a long-term program for our young Men's National Team with the objective of qualifying for the London Olympics in 2012, and improving our currently low standing in the FIBA world rankings resulting from long years of neglect. To help realize these goals, a Serbian coach, Mr. Djago Tomasevic, has been engaged and a comprehensive training program and schedule has been put together which includes our far, near domestic and training camps in Serbia, the United States, Indonesia and Japan.
2. The Philippine National Teams have achieved significant results in the last year by virtue of the SBP program now in place:

a) 7th place, FIBA Asia Championships for Junior Men in 2008	a) Champion, 1st China Women-EBU International Tournament in 2008
b) 2nd place, 1st Asian Beach Games in Sep. 2008	b) 9th place, FIBA Asia Championship for Men 2009
c) 2nd place, Women's FIBA Asia Championships for Junior Women in 2008	c) Champion, 14th SEA-2009 - Qualifier for 14th Asian Pearl's Championships in Taichung, China
3. The SBP National Team Competitions calendar for 2009 has never been more solid and with our teams qualifying for the FIBA Asia Championship for Women (15 and under), the FIBA Asia Championship for Junior Men and Women, the FIBA Asia Championships for Men, the Asian Youth Games and the Asian Indoor Games (Vietnam).

Membership Program

To date, ten (10) new active members have been added to the roster of SBP membership bringing the total number to twenty-four (24). Other applications are now being reviewed by the Nominations and Membership Committee for active status. In addition, ten (10) new associate members have been added with provision for future consideration as regular active members. Total membership (active and associate) now stands at forty (40).

WHY DO THE ATTACKS ON SBP CONTINUE?

Despite these achievements, it saddens us to note that there are SBP foes who continue to question the legitimacy of the SBP and its current leadership. These individuals, who are still aligned with the BAP have chosen to disregard the "Tanya Communiqué" dated 28th August 2008, which led to the formation of the SBP as the country's sole and unified governing body for basketball. They also allege that the SBP has failed to comply with the subsequent "Bansag Agreement" dated 30th February 2009, which elaborated further the terms of the Tanya Communiqué. It is apparent that the BAP continue to have issues and complaints against SBP and its present leadership to the detriment of advancing only in Philippine Basketball. It is also clearer now that SBP's integrity status is only minor to its own terms.

Last May 26, 2009, the SBP received a letter from Mr. Patrick Baumann, FIBA Secretary General, advising the SBP of the creation of a "Special Commission for the Philippines". The formation of this Special Commission was precipitated by "various correspondence and continuous complaints addressed to the FIBA Secretariat over the past months on the matter related to the institutional legitimacy of the Philippine Basketball Federation and its current leadership".

WHAT IS THE SBP POSITION?

The SBP has decided that it will not submit to the jurisdiction of this Special Commission for the following reasons:

1. Mr. Baumann in his letter dated last year (May 11, 2008) and sent to the SBP clearly and categorically stated that:
 - (i) FIBA is fully supporting the SBP and its President Marwin V. Pangalanan and its Board of Trustees;
 - (ii) FIBA will disavow any communication coming from the former BAP "as it has no rights with FIBA"; and
 - (iii) FIBA is disavowing Mr. Baumann letter with immediate effect from its membership in the FIBA Youth Commission, citing his "continuing actions to disrupt the proper functioning of the SBP" as "unacceptable".
2. The Philippine Court of Appeals has already affirmed SBP's compliance with the Bansag Agreement and the Tanya Communiqué. The Court's decision confirmed the membership validation process undertaken by the SBP and also sustained the validity of the June 12, 2008 SBP National Congress and the regular election of SBP's trustees and officers held at that meeting.
3. The Philippine Sports Commission (PSC) and the Philippine Sports Commission (PSC) have both recognized the SBP and have effectively and correctly accorded its leadership with full rights as the lawful governing body of basketball in the Philippines.
4. The basis on which the Special Commission was formed relied on complaints and allegations, as mentioned in the Baumann letter of May 26, 2009, made by the BAP that are spurious and baseless. That is why the Baumann letter is simply irresponsible – giving apparent credence to "various correspondence and continuous complaints" without verifying their veracity. Instead of removing the spurious and false wheels – as Baumann indicated he would in his letter last year to SBP – he has now lubricated them with oil.

WHAT NEXT?

We should emphasize that it was the BAP which initiated the judicial action challenging the legitimacy of the June 12, 2008 SBP National Congress and elections. We regard this legal step by the BAP to be significant because it clearly demonstrates its intention and preference to have the matter decided by our Philippine judicial system – and not by any other party, tribunal or commission – foreign or local. Having lost in a forum that they themselves chose, BAP is now shopping for another forum that may be sympathetic to it.

Accordingly, the SBP has to put on record and placed FIBA on notice that it shall not participate in any proceedings which this Special Commission may undertake unless and until it has become unequivocally clear to SBP what its mandate, jurisdiction and scope of authority really are. More importantly, the BAP legal challenge, after having been rejected by our Court of Appeals, has been elevated by it to our Supreme Court, where it is now under consideration. In that light, the SBP has truly taken the position that whilst the domestic issue is under judicial review, it should not submit itself to any other legal jurisdiction until the matter has been finally resolved by our legal system. Let Philippine law take its course, let us respect our Courts and not incur their contempt otherwise.

We, the members of the SBP call upon all legitimate stakeholders of Philippine Basketball to eschew their individual and collective interest and take a unified stand concerning the disruptive actions of the BAP and protect FIBA's unimpaired relations etc. what must be a purely domestic matter requiring domestic resolution.

Make yourself be heard by sending your comments through this page.

World Bank sees RP slipping into recession

Neda disputes forecast, expects strong Q2 growth

By Michele K. Banic

THE WORLD BANK HAS WARNED THAT THE Philippines would slip into recession this year, saying government efforts to stimulate the economy would not be enough to neutralize foreign investors as the global turmoil continues to push businesses to the sidelines.

The World Bank said there was nothing extraordinary about the Philippines that would keep it immune from the crisis gripping the world economy, which it projected to contract by 2.8 percent this year.

The bank's forecast on the Philippine economy contradicted with the government's projection that the economy would escape a recession and grow anywhere between 0.8 and 1.6 percent this year. This would be slower than last year's annual growth of 4.6 percent, but the government said it would be much better than forecasts for other developing economies.

The Philippines will avoid a recession this year with second-quarter growth expected to outpace the first three months of the year as the government used emergency spending to prop up the economy, government officials said.

"We expect things to be better than the first quarter," Nilda Tupayan, deputy director general of the National Economic and Development Authority, told reporters on the sidelines of the launch of a United Nations pilot and migration program yesterday.

If not having international credit, second-quarter growth should pick up in the second quarter with government and consumer spending picking up, supported by modest consumer flows.

"Clearly there is no recession. Recession will not occur," he added.

The World Bank, in a report released yesterday, said that

P2.5-B upgrade of Caticlan airport set

By Rex T. Chismora

THE CATERPILLAR GROUP, INC. (CATERPILLAR) has agreed to provide a P2.5-billion expansion plan on international airport.

The government, through the Department of Transportation and Communications, yesterday signed a cooperation agreement that will enable program proposed Caticlan International Airport Development Corp. (CIGARC) to proceed with the development under a 20-year build-operate-transfer scheme.

Under the agreement, the CIGARC has up to seven years to build and expand the airport and 25 years to operate the facility. Once the President and other key government officials approve CIGARC's expansion, the 25-year period can start even before the airport is finished.

"This public-private partnership ensures that the government is not shouldering the cost of the airport as we wait for the government," Transportation Secretary Leonardo A. Briones said in an interview.

CIGARC chief George Yung noted that the Caticlan project would be "the first ever privatization of an airport terminal in the country."

Financial adviser Jey Madao said the P2.5-billion would cover 30 percent equity and 70 percent debt from a state of government and private funds.

Is Your Child Over Nourished?

Overnutrition is increasingly affecting Filipino children. In the 2003 National Nutrition Survey conducted by the Food and Nutrition Research Institute (FNRI), it was showed that through the years, there was an increase in the number of overweight Filipino children aged 3-5.

While we know that the problem on overweight and obesity may result from a number of factors, increased intake of high energy foods combined with reduced physical activity are the more common factors, especially for children.

Too Much Sugar in Kids' Diets

Many medical experts think that excess consumption of refined sugars have contributed to the dramatic rise of obesity in the United States. Thus, parents should be aware of excessive sugar in their children's food and beverages.

The FNRI recommends that children aged 4-9 take no more than 5 teaspoons of sugar a day. This pertains to common table sugar, usually added in food products like cakes, pastries, biscuits, cereals, sodas, juices and even milk.

Sweets and Teeth

Eating too many sugary foods can lead to tooth decay, especially when combined with poor oral hygiene. Bacteria in the mouth feed on sugars and produce acids that eat away tooth enamel and dental structure. Also, beverages with high sugar content are more likely to cause dental caries when sipped slowly over an extended period of time.

Lost Appetite, Lost Nutrition?

Children may also lose their appetite when sugary foods or beverages are consumed soon before meal times. Thus, children are filled with empty calories and miss out on the nutrients from a varied and balanced diet. If unchecked, this may lead not only to overnutrition, but vitamin and mineral deficiencies that may affect their development.

Possible Long-Term Effects

Regular consumption of high-sugar foods and beverages may also predispose children to sweet flavors. Since eating habits are formed in early childhood, this may lead to a high-calorie diet that may lead to obesity if combined with an inactive lifestyle.

Moderation is Key

The key to keeping sugar consumption in check is moderation. Sugar can enhance the taste of some foods, but how can you tell how much sugar is in these products?

Check the Carbohydrate Content

One way is to check the label. For example, when it comes to pre-school milk, check the carbohydrate content. Sugar is listed as part of total carbohydrates. That's why, generally, in milk, high carbohydrates could mean high sugar.

Building a Healthy Lifestyle

Armed with these facts, parents can make more informed choices in planning their children's diet. By checking the sugar intake of their children, they will have more room for the essential nutrients that count, and are building a healthy nutrition foundation that may well last a lifetime.

Does your child's milk give you the best value for your money?

Be sure that you're paying for more milk, less sugar.

Check the Label

Source: Sugar analysis of 3+ pre-school milk (JTR 121956 to 121963), SGS, April 2009.
Note: Sugar refers to sucrose content per 1 kilo can of 3+ milk.

Not all milk are made the same; some have more sugar than others.
To find out how much sugar is in your child's milk,
check the carbohydrate content.
